John O. Ripley, living on Oxford St., South Paris, Me., says:—"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and take great pleasure in giving them my recommendation. I was feeling quite miserable and had been suffering for some months from dull pains through the small of my back and across my loins. My kidneys were not acting in a normal manner and the secretions were very unnatural in appearance. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I went to F. A. Shurtleff A Co's drug store, and procured a box. I used them in accordance with the directions, the pains disappeared and my kidneys ceased to trouble me."

"Be Careful What You Say"

This world is a beautiful world indeed, if we only would live the right way. But I'm sure 'twas not made for gossip alone. So be careful what you say.

For harsh words once spoken can never be recalled. What you keep by you can change if you may. However humble your station or feeble your power.

Be careful, oh do, what you say. As a bad penny wanders it may sometime return. Gossiping for itself no brighter rays; Don't our thoughtful light spoken words, Let's be careful we know what we say.

If you see a man struggling in trouble and sin, Don't turn from him nor make delays, Just give to him kind and encouraging words, But be careful won't you what you say? False witnesses are recorded in the great Book of Life.

For each one to answer some day; Isn't it better by far to show kindness to all, To be careful each one what you say? "Judge not one another" were the Master's own words.

"Forgiveness for sin I repay." If you hear a man for a world where gossip is not, Be sure you know just what you say.

East Stoneham, Me. MA-BELLER.

The Versionist.

Not unfrequently there comes among us someone possessed with a new version of the Bible; or better, someone with a new construction placed on the different injunctions and expressions contained in the Bible.

It would seem no one could conscientiously change a sentence nor manufacture some version entirely foreign to its real meaning, for the sake of emphasis and not reality.

The Messiah says, Pray,—"Lead us not into temptation."

If the versionist says,—"This is not right, we need temptations."

In trying to prove fallacy in the Lord's prayer, that is really so subtle and perfect, he makes himself greater than his maker.

Yet the Bible says simply, "Ye are God's."

Temptations come without asking. We need to pray "Lead us not into temptation."

Again if Jehovah has caused to be written the command "Pray without ceasing," try and believe it is really best for erring mortals to keep ever within the heart of Jehovah, for whether uttered or unexpressed.

For it is a fearful thing to battle with, or change one jot, or little of the law, and none of it shall pass away till all be fulfilled, saith the Lord of Hosts.

We may build stately temples, write volumes, erect monuments, criticize persons and things, to a certain extent, and perhaps, nearly turn the world upside down, but one cannot with impunity construe the Bible to suit the mass, he must reconcile the people to the Bible.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK.

Moses M. Russell.

On Tuesday morning, April 27th, Moses M. Russell, one of the oldest residents of the town of Woodstock, passed away at the home of his son, E. S. Russell, after an illness of about two weeks.

Previous to his last illness he had been in his usual good health and had just finished fitting up the winter's supply of wood.

Mr. Russell was born in Newry, Sept. 23, 1824. His father, Luke Russell, died when Mr. Russell was but a boy. Little is known of his death for it occurred in Orono long before the days of steam and the telegraph and no one knows today where he is buried. After his father's death he came to Woodstock and did chores for his board.

He lived for a time at Dan Day's and attended school at what was known as the Central school.

While a young man he went to Lowell, Mass., and worked in the cotton mills, where he met the girl who afterward became his wife, Eveline Sheldon of Simonsville, Vt.

While in Lowell he hauled the first load of lumber to put up the first frame building ever erected in Lawrence. After his marriage he ran the town farm and brick yard in Shirley, Mass., for a few years and then moved to Woodstock, where he settled on Hillings Hill and has lived in this same town for nearly 60 years.

His first wife died July 5, 1881. He remained single for a number of years and then married Mrs. Abbie Billings for his second wife. He has spent the greater part of the time for the past 20 years with his son, Edwin. He leaves, beside his wife, one half brother, James Billings of Bethel, one niece, Mrs. Lillian Wentworth of Rollinsford, N. H., and one son, Edwin S. Russell of South Woodstock, with whom he has made his home for a number of years.

There is hardly a face that will be more missed. A lifelong resident of the town he knew everyone and could tell you the family history of almost any family in the town. He always had a funny story and a good word for all. He was affectionately known by everyone either as "Uncle Mose" or "Uncle Moses."

He was always a favorite with the children and a gray haired man who had a family now can remember when "Uncle Mose" gave him a lift as a boy.

For years he has been a member of Mt. Abram Lodge, No. 31, I. O. O. F. He was a member of the first Odd Fellows of Old Woodstock, and this winter attended one of the big meetings and banquets at South Paris, where he was as lively as the youngest. He has always been a hardy, rugged man, and worked out haylog only last summer. His bright, genial face will be much missed for "Uncle Mose" has gone to his reward after a long life of faithful service.

F. E. Davis is painting his house.

Lyman Beck is quite poorly this spring.

Mrs. G. W. Q. Perham has been sick with a bad cold.

F. E. Davis and wife, Ethlyn Davis and G. W. Q. Perham attended Pomona at Bethel.

Cyrus Hamlin's Life Work.

An Oxford County Boy Who Awoke the Spirit That Has Overthrown the Sultan.

In this world of strange contrasts, Waterford, Maine, and the great city of Constantinople would seem to be as far removed from interests in common as it was possible to be imagined. The tiny village nestling by its lakelet in the shadow of the Oxford hills, has apparently no relation whatever to the proud city of Constantinople which for more than 20 centuries has been a seat of empire beside the Golden Horn; and yet, the teachings of Cyrus Hamlin, born in Waterford, are the inspiration of the mighty political changes which are taking place in the Ottoman empire today.

Cyrus Hamlin was the founder and promoter of modern education in Turkey. He came to be known throughout the empire as "The Teacher." He opened the way and gave the impulse for political and social regeneration among the people of Turkey. In the establishment of Robert college in Constantinople opportunity was afforded to the subjects of the Sultan for education such as was to be found nowhere else in Turkey.

The result has been the growth of a spirit of freedom and independence which has now accomplished the overthrow of the last stronghold of tyranny.

Considering the admitted results of his missionary and educational work in Turkey it is not strange that the Sultan refused for a long time to allow the establishment of Robert college and it was not until the unexpected arrival in the Bosphorus one day of the United States naval fleet under Admiral Farragut that permission to build the college buildings on the chosen site was reluctantly granted.

This was not of course, the object of the visit of American war ships to Constantinople, and it is doubtful if the Admiral knew of the purpose of his countrymen to found a college there; but the sight of the ships at anchor so near at hand created a diversion in Mr.

Hamlin's favor and gave him the opportunity for which he had been waiting seven years.

The life of Cyrus Hamlin was full of the most stirring adventures. He was born at Waterford, 1811. He died in Portland in the 90th year of his age.
At the age of 16 it was decided that he should leave the farm and go to Portland to learn the trade of silversmithing with Charles Farley, father of Cyrus Hamlin Farley, who has since been his sister. In his autobiography he tells of the parting. "With hearts ready to break we parted, with New England reserve and self-possession. Such experiences always nerved the New Englander up to the quality of tempered steel. The only part bordering on pathos was when my mother, with a tremor in her voice, gave me a Bible and asked me to read it every day. And then I slipped out to the barn to bid my dumb friends farewell. I kissed the cat and the dog and the favorite cows a sad farewell. I never confessed to that weakness until I was old enough to defend it. And thus my farm life closed."

He became interested in religious works and wishing to improve himself and render his life more useful, there followed a college preparatory course at Bridgton academy and four years at Bowdoin college ending in graduation in the class of '34. His course in theology at Bangor seminary, which was the preparatory for his final preparation for the missionary field which he had voluntarily chosen, and on the 4th of February, 1837, he received an appointment to Constantinople and to the department of education.

A year intervened between the time of his appointment and the date of his departure for the foreign field; and during a part of that time he occupied the pulpit of the Second Parish church in Portland.

The most notable feature of Mr. Ham-lin's work in the East was his original conception of introducing secular education in connection with his religious work among the people, and of making the English language the medium for the higher education of Orientals. Upon these two ideas Robert college was founded; but prior to the founding of the college they had been thoroughly tested at Bebek seminary, which was the first educational institution which Mr. Hamlin founded and which he maintained for 19 years. These ideas soon became a power in the empire. It is easy to see what a mighty power he wielded for the cause of freedom and enlightenment in this dark corner of the world.

The Crimean war afforded Mr. Hamlin opportunities for enlarging his industrial operations at Bebek seminary, by supplying the hospitals with bread.
He had, sometime before, established a bakery, the products of which were the good old State of Maine kind, and had become popular in that Eastern country. He tells how he was sent for by Lord Raglan's chief physician, when the following conversation ensued:

"Are you Hamlin, the baker?"
"No, sir, I am Rev. Mr. Hamlin, the American missionary."
"That is just about as correct as anything I can get in this country. I send for a baker and I get a missionary.
Thank God I am not a heathen that I should want a missionary."

"I presume that bread is what you want, and you don't care whether it comes from a heathen or a missionary."
"Exactly so."

Mr. Hamlin then told him how it was that an American missionary should have anything to do with breadmaking, and not only that, but of the various other industries which he had inaugurated for the purpose of enabling the persecuted people of Turkey to sustain themselves and their families; and ended by surprising the doctor with the statement that he would supply the hospitals with wholesome and appetizing bread for just one-half the amount that the government was paying for the vile stuff that caused the sick soldiers to become sicker.

The result was the making of a large contract with the British government for a supply of bread; and later on, another contract for the washing of the soldiers' clothing with such good financial results to the mission that more than $25,000 of profits were realized out of these transactions, for the support of the work.

Larger opportunity was now opening for him in the desire of C. F. Roberts, a New York merchant, to found a Christian college at Constantinople. He came to America, organized the college and became its President. Robert college was a repetition of the known scale of the work and aims of Bebek seminary.
Its establishment was violently opposed by the Sultan, and it was only after seven years of patient waiting, and the happening of a fortuitous circumstance, that it was finally established on a commanding site in the city of Constantinople.

"Won't that Hamlin ever die?" was the despairing cry of one of the Grand Visiers, when he had seen for years the astute diplomat with which every effort to exterminate Mr. Hamlin and his work had been met.

It has been said of Mr. Hamlin's work in the East: "All his pupils carried to their distant homes the distinct stamp of genuine sympathy and masterful energy.
Only a few months ago I saw a letter from one of his old pupils who is now a high official in the Turkish government.
It was full of the spirit of love and devotion toward the teacher whom the writer delighted to honor. In the living room of many a humble home in Armenia and Koordistan the only picture upon the dark walls is the face of the teacher whom his faithful pupils never ceased to love."

Returning to Maine after closing his connection with Robert college he taught for some years at the Bangor Theological seminary, and afterwards became President of Middlebury college in Vermont.

To the end of his life his heart yearned with longing toward the Bosphorus, and he frequently said that if in another world it be permitted to the disembodied spirit to revisit former scenes, his course would be taken directly to Turkey.

In 1900 he came to Portland to attend the celebration of "Old Home Week." On the evening of August 5th he attended re-union at the Second Parish church, so intimately connected with the beginnings of his great career. That night he passed quietly to his long rest.

Hiawatha Lodge, No. 49, K. of P., of East Stoneham observed their twenty-fifth anniversary with appropriate ex-

May 13th.

In the afternoon there was a recep-bird of Norway. Supper was served at 6 o'clock.

In the evening at 8 o'clock there was a ball. Music by Robinson orchestra.

Saturday morning at Edes' Falls a large fire broke out, burning the well known Green block, also the house near it owned by George Libby of Raymond.
The only thing that saved the entire village from burning was the drizzling rain and the snow on the roofs.
The fire is supposed to have started around the chimney and although there was a large number of people on the spot within a very short time after the fire was discovered, it had made such a headway in the Green block they were unable to save anything but the live stock, viz., cows, pigs, horses, hens, etc., while about everything was saved from the house near by. It is not known at the present time whether or not either were insured.

NORTH WATERFORD.

Supper and Entertainment.

A large company gathered at I. O. O. F. hall Saturday evening for a supper and entertainment. The supper was a proof of the culinary skill of the ladies of North Waterford. But the entertainment was a good success for the gloomy feeling. One laughed without knowing it.

The first number on the program was a song, "When the Whippoorwill sings," by Geraldine and Annie York. Then a tableau was announced as "A Welcome Sight to Teddy When He Returns from His African Trip." It proved to be two beautiful silk flags crossed in the center of the stage, a welcome sight to anyone. Ralph Knight in his "cocked hat and feather," cantering across the stage on a spotted pony, made a very cute "Yankee Doodle." All enjoyed the reading by Mrs. Rosa York, and the tableau, "Rock of Ages" posed by Annie York, and the young folks rocking the cradle, while "father" is taking his ease. The tableau, "Ups and Downs of Life," showed two well-known and by no means slender matrons of the village on a see-saw board.

The "Fancy-dress Ball" should have been seen to be appreciated. It is safe to say that such costumes and such steps were never before seen at a masquerade. The last number on the program was another song by the Misses York. The entertainment reflected great credit on the ladies in charge.

On Saturday evening, May 22d, the Woman's Relief Corps will serve an anti-quarian supper at the vestry of the Congregational church, the proceeds to be used for Memorial purposes. The menu will consist of brown bread and beans, baked Indian pudding, "oiled dinner," twisted doughnuts, gingerbread such as mother used to make, pies of all kinds and other good dishes of "ye ancient time." It is expected the ladies of the Corps will be costumed in the gowns of their grandmothers.

He Doesn't Believe in It.

To the Editor of ADVERTISER: Have suckers commenced to run in Norway?
If not, this projected, resurrected Oxford Central will certainly start them.
The town of Norway has nothing to gain if such a road were to be built and on the start it would be a losing proposition.

If you have money to spend in speculation just put it into some good manufacturing plant which will increase your population, bring diverse employment to your town by legitimate business.
Let the G. T. R. build this road if they want it but the town of Norway should let it severely alone.
Auburn, Me. CHAS. S. BARTLETT.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardiner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and severe female weakness. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but I could not bear it.
I decided to try Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash
—and was entirely cured after three months' use of them."—Mrs. S. A.
WILLIAMS, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 39, Gardiner, Me.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.
This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
It cures female ills and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Oxford County Gems.

Exceedingly interesting, and rather amazing, moreover, to the average Maine resident, would be a list of names of Norway people who are wearing Oxford county gems as jewels. The tourmaline from Mt. Mica is no doubt the most famously known of all the Maine gems.
While the black tourmaline is found in many parts of the world, the colored stones are more rarely mined. In Maine are some of the valuable deposits known. Although the ruby tinted, as well as blue and pink and green tour-malines are found in three or four different localities in the county, yet the Mt. Mica pockets are the most valuable. Gems from here being valued at $500 when cut and polished. India and Ceylon stones and Brazil have all sent tourmaline gems into the jewel markets of the world, yet in the United States the Maine stones are considered by far the finest, and most brilliant.

But not only tourmalines, but amethysts, beryls, topazes, garnets and freshwater pearls may be found in the immediate vicinity of Norway.

Old-Fashioned Way of Perfuming.

Incense burners are ornamental as well as useful, and can be purchased in all kinds of metal, according to the prices, while the spicy scents burned in them can be made at home at small expense.

To secure a spicy, fragrant odor in a flat, shallow basin, filled with boiling water, put a teaspoonful of cinnamon oil and the spicy fumes will be sent out by the steam.

If it is possible to keep the vessel where it will simmer, but not boil, the steam, being longer retained, acts longer on a whole room may be used in the oil of lavender may be used in the same way, as may any of the pungent flavors, such as neroli, rhodium, etc.
The only trouble with the method is that it is not specially attractive to look at and so cannot be done in the presence of guests.

However, a room once perfumed in this manner will retain the odor for several hours.

Cinnamon ground, and cassia, put away in garments, give a fragrant odor reminds one of spicy tales. Sandal wood is, of course, the sweetest of all.
Some old wiseacres believe that cinnamon has disinfectant properties when burned in a room, and will kill germs.
However this may be, some of the powder thrown on a hot shovel will make a sick room smell fresh.

Dr. C. E. Wilson's Life Threatened

Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wilson of East Hiram, returned from a carriage ride Thursday night, the 6th. At their home they were met in the yard by Albert Sanborn, a well known resident, who it is alleged leveled a 38-caliber revolver at him and taking careful aim, announced in slow determined tones that he was going to kill him. He then related a story which it is believed has affected his mind.

He seemed to deem it necessary to tell the long story and was led on by Dr.
Wilson who knew that his salvation depended upon its length. He kept interjecting a word here and there and Mrs.
Wilson becoming aware of his object left the carriage on the opposite side and hastened away for assistance. The house is situated quite a distance away from any others and it was sometime before she got three men to come to the rescue.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How to Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What to Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Correct inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.
You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Maine Rifle Practice.

The rifle practice order for the national guard of Maine, just issued, officially designates the season to begin April 19 and end Oct. 31. The qualifications will be in accordance with the 1908 revision of the small arms firing regulations, United States army and organized militia, except as modified.

The season issue of rifle ammunition will be 5,000 rounds to each company of infantry, with an additional issue of 1,000 rounds to any company which, prior to Sept. 1, attains a figure of merit of 75 or better. Any company which on Sept. 30 has attained a figure of 100 will be entitled to an additional 1,000 rounds. Any company which does not attain a figure of 75 by Sept. 1 but does attain a figure of 100 by Sept. 30, will be entitled to an additional issue at that time of 2,000 rounds. Each division of the naval reserve will be entitled to 3,000 rounds, and an additional 1,000 rounds by attaining a figure of $5 prior to Sept. 30. To each officer and enlisted man to whom the revolver is issued, 200 rounds of revolver ammunition will be issued. Those qualifying under special course "C" will receive instead of the same pattern as issued to the regular army, but made of bronze. But one medal for rifle qualification and one for the revolver will be worn, each to be the highest which the wearer has earned. Medals won in competitions may be worn, but the number is limited to three in all.

Onion Seed.

Onion seeds need to be put in as early as the ground can be fitted. Before they are sown the seed should be tested by sowing a small quantity in a box in the house, or a better way would be to place the seed between two folds of cloth which should be kept moist and in a warm place. In a few days the seed will sprout and an observation will show how many of them are good. If the seed is so poor that no more than one-third of it germinates, it will be better to throw it all away and buy new, as, if so much of it does not sprout at all, it is probable that such as does sprout will have so far lost its vitality as to give but a weak and feeble plant that will not grow well after it comes up.

The pullets to be used for egg producing next winter should be all hatched by the end of April or middle of May, and it is now too soon to begin to prepare for their coming. The best producing pullets are hatched from yearling hens of good vigor and laying qualities that descend in the line from females of equal excellence. Chances are that you will produce quality in an individual, but proper line breeding is the only way to assure success.

Maine moth fighters will be interested to learn that Prof. L. O. Howard of Washington, entomologist of the department of agriculture, plans to visit Europe for the purpose of seeking an efficient parasite for the destruction of the brown-tail moth, which has become so much of a pest in this State and New England. He is in conference with several eminent European entomologists in the hope of discovering the relief which he cannot find on this side of the water.

That's the Way to Pronounce Hymel the Money-Back Catarrh Cure.

As doubt exists in the minds of many readers of the Norway ADVERTISER let us say that the above is the proper pronunciation of America's most wonderful catarrh cure. Frank Kimball, proprietor of Noyes Drug Store, is the agent for Hymel in Norway and he will sell you an inhaler, a bottle of Hymel and full instructions for use, for only $1.00. And if it fails to cure acute or chronic catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, croup, hay fever or coughs and colds, he will give you your money back. The person who suffers from catarrh after such an action as that, must like to snuffle, spit and wheeze, and be generally disgusting. Read what Mr. G. F. Lowe says:

"I have used Hymel for a case of nasal catarrh which had bothered me for a long time. I can say that Hymel killed the germs of the disease and gave me the much sought and needed relief. From this experience I know Hymel to be a reliable remedy, and I give it the praise and recommendation that it deserves."—G. F. Lowe, R. F. No. 7, Allegan, Mich., September 19, 1908. 18-220.

Gen. Ingalls of Denmark.

This ancestral house of Gen. Ingalls is pleasantly situated in the quiet but thriving village of Denmark, Concord, in that part of Oxford county in southwestern Maine, which joins the western boundary of Cumberland county. Denmark is a farming town of nearly 800 inhabitants.

The Ingalls homestead was the ancestral abode of that eminent soldier, Major General Rufus Ingalls. Rufus Ingalls was born on the homestead farm in 1820. His father, Cyrus Ingalls, was a farmer and one of the early settlers of the township, which was settled in 1788 and incorporated in 1807. Rufus was the youngest of fourteen children, all of whom are dead. It was an intellectual, smart family, and among the children Cyrus the oldest was a prominent citizen and politician; and Jonathan, who died recently at Bridgton, was a veteran sheriff and business man. Through the political influence of his father, Rufus, the youngest, was appointed a cadet at West Point, which he entered in 1849. It was a notable class of which Rufus became a member, including quite a number who became famous in the Civil War both on the Union and Confederate sides. Of this and the other classes who were fellow cadets of Ingalls, were Generals Grant, Sherman, Burnside, Thomas, McClellan, Franklin, Longstreet, Pope, Hancock, Cochrans, Libbey, Richard Anderson, Cotten, Lovell and Andrew Porter, C. P. Stone, Tower and others.

Grant and Ingalls were roommates, as well as classmates and were then and thereafter, and until their death, devoted friends, and they were comrades in the Mexican and Civil War. Grant died at Mt. McGregor, N. Y., July 23, 1885, aged 63; Ingalls died in New York city, Jan. 14, 1893, at the age of 73.

Rufus Ingalls had an honorable record as a cadet in the United States army; served in California and Oregon; was in Col. Steptoe's noted anti-Mormon expeditions across the continent; and, as a member of Gen. Harney's staff, took part in the "San Juan affair."

His record as quartermaster general of the armies of the Potomac and the James in the Civil War is a proud one. He was, in fact, Grant's right hand man, and it is a matter of history that he would have been given command of one of the chief armies had he so desired. The Ingalls farmhouse is essentially the same as it was when Rufus Ingalls, the father, and his helpmate were toiling and struggling to make an honest living for themselves and their numerous progeny. When it came into the possession of the general, he made desirable improvements in the manner of repairs, painting, etc.; and this good work was continued by Augustus Ingalls, postmaster and mill-man, a nephew of the general.

The main house, the longell and carriage house are of wood, painted white and have green blinds. Near the latter building, with a cattle yard between, is a typical Maine barn, which is likewise kept painted in good repair. In the front lawn are a graceful fir and three tall elms, which, as the buildings face the south, afford a grateful shade in the hot months.

The broad street, which runs past the homestead is a section of the old stage road from Bridgton (through Denmark) to Brownfield, and just at this point, at a right angle, starts what is known as the "South Road."

On a bit of greenward in front of the house is a pagoda-shaped structure, which was built for and some years used as a band stand. There, within its latticed area, the Denmark Brass Band was wont to entertain the public with its excellent music. That period was the golden age of rural bands; but this commendable fad, like the Roman empire, had its decline and fall, and the Denmark band as such is a thing of the past.

Over the ell is seen, a fine picture, the crest of Pleasant Mountain, only a short distance away and which is much frequented by outing and picnic parties, is especially sought in blueberry time and which affords a wide and magnificent prospect.

In this connection, it is of interest to state that Denmark is the birthplace of two of the most noted men in America, Rufus Ingalls and Gov. Hazen S. Pingree of Michigan. Jasper Pingree, father of the famous mayor and governor, was a farmer. But it is said that he passed his last years at the home of Hazen in Detroit. Unlike the ancestral Ingalls home, the Pingree farmhouse has vanished. The farms though not contiguous, are not a great way apart.

Whatever time and fortune Maine men may win abroad, it is a rule with scarcely an exception that their love for the old boyhood home is a deep and enduring one. This is true of Gen. Ingalls and Gov. Pingree, each of whom a few years ago made the long journey from Oregon and Michigan to his native place.

The water in Long lake is the highest it has been for years, and the ice has done much damage to boat-houses and wharves.

Geo. A. Graves of Boston, the well known horse man, and owner of Combination Park, Medford, Mass., has been spending a few days in Chelsea, Mass. It is rumored about that he intended to take back a few well bred horses or colts, but the ones that met with his fancy could not be bought. It would seem, however, that with some of the well bred mares that we now have, and with the opportunity to breed to Solor O one of the best bred sons of Burgen, that in a year or two we might have some youngsters to meet with the demands.

Memorial Day.

As the years pass the truth is more and more being impressed upon the consciousness of the nation and of the individual that Memorial day is changing and shifting in its character. Once it was designed as the occasion when men who fought for the nation's integrity might pay honor to their dead comrades in arms, thus stimulating the patriotic spirit of the whole people and keeping alive the memory of those who died for their country.

As the seasons pass and as the spring-times return this function of remembering the dead of army and navy is being placed in other hands. Those of another generation are taking up the sacred duty and carrying it onward to everlasting earthly remembrance.

Since Memorial day of one year ago only, many of the old veterans who marched in line to the burial places of earth to place flowers upon the graves of their comrades are now sleeping forever in the sleep of the soldiers in glory and other hands are turning to them the tribute of loyal memory.

It will not be many years before the last of the veterans of the 60s shall have joined the ranks of those thus honored in this season. It is inconceivable, however, that Memorial day will ever cease to be observed by a grateful nation, even if every last veteran had been called to the hereafter. Rather will it continue in even more potent and devout sign of the nation's memories in truth, all personal participation ended, and only the gratitude of a preserved country remaining.

Thus a national institution will have developed, founded upon a lasting and noble basis.

Other wars may possibly come as one was already fought in recent years, to add to the reasons for the custom of annually decorating our soldiers' graves and throwing flowers to the everlasting memory of those who went down in its cold and silent depths in defense of the flag. Nor is it impossible to conceive that other deeds of sacrifice and valor will be performed to make history and to inspire followers of coming generations with the sacredness of devotion to country, to home and to native land.

Trees.

A poor comparison is made between some of the forests of Maine with the great waste to which they are subjected and the town of Freudenstadt, Germany. Freudenstadt is a town of 7,000 people in the Black Forest region of Germany, says Henry W. Hyde in March Technical World Magazine.

Ohisholm was a town of 6,000 in the Big Woods country of Minnesota. Every year, from the tall black pine trees which grow in ordered rows in the 6,000 acres of publicly owned land about Freudenstadt a regular crop of lumber which pays all the expenses of the city government—mayor, alderman, police and fire departments is raised. That crop will go on forever. The thrifty people of Freudenstadt my devote their whole attention to their thriving iron and chemical industries, knowing that the beautiful and beneficent forest will pay all the cost of their municipal activities.

Forest Fires.

Maine is placarding her forests from the coast to Canada with cautions against fires, but something more forcible than warnings may be necessary to keep them intact. Boston Transcript.

As an example of "English as she is writ," sometimes, in Boston, this is illuminating. Nevertheless, the average seeker after wisdom will wonder whether it is the forest or the cautions that are in the way of being kept intact.—[Bridgton Journal.]

Should a racing, roaring, up-to-date forest fire get going with great momentum in a dry spell, we doubt if either the forests or the placards are kept intact.

Obedient Orders.

"Now," said the magistrate, "you must testify only to what you know, no hearsay evidence. Under-stand?" "Yes, sir," replied the female witness. "Your name is Mary Bright, I believe. Now, what's your age?" "I won't tell you, I have only hearsay evidence on that point."

To Press Old Ribbon.

First brush out all dust and threads and if it is badly wrinkled dip in water; then press by holding the iron perfectly still and firm and drawing the ribbon under it until perfectly dry and smooth. Moving the iron along leaves it stiff and harsh.

Want to be strong?

Eat more Quaker Oats. Eat it for breakfast every day. This advice is coming from all sides as a result of recent experiments on foods to determine which are the best for strength and endurance. It has been proved that eaters of Quaker Oats and such cereals are far superior in strength and endurance to those who rely upon the usual diet of heavy, greasy foods.

When all is said and done on the cereal food question, the fact remains that for economy and for results in health and strength, Quaker Oats stands first of all. It is the most popular food in the world among the foods sold in packages. All grocers carry Quaker Oats. It sells at 10c for the regular size package, 25c for the large size family package and 30c for the family package containing a fine piece of china.
